'Commission' is Sharyn Honey Lowe's most extensive collection of works created in honour of a specific space. Her work starts by observing a space and noticing beauty. In the case of Commis, it was the unseen beauty of a concrete floor, a draining board, a scuffed kitchen door, a glass lamp, a wooden cabinet.

Lowe then reflects and celebrates the space by illuminating and enlivening her photography with collaged images and text from sources including Vogue Japan (various 2000's editions), and vinyl album lyrics.

Turning a space's lines, colours, textures, shapes and forms into a reflection of the owner's persona is one of the aims of Lowe's work.

Each piece starts with photography which is then matched with one of Lowe's collages. The two pieces are digitally altered, printed on canvas and then Lowe adds various paint, gels and other additions to the final piece.
